JUNE 2009 SWEATER OF THE MONTH

Change is once again in the air. Oh forget the in the air bit, life is always changing. June is no exception. Forget thoughts of stability, tranquil docile moments and go straight to dynamic. That's the name of the game at L'Atelier. We're moving so fast we can hardly keep up. The Redondo store soon finds itself in our new location. We're so excited. The watchword is space. Something we've always yearned for and now we have it. Come visit us and see how we've morphed.

Try to remember during this change of season from spring to summer to catch a few moments for yourself. I always harp on the knitting gig to separate you from the day to day grind. Most important is to give yourself a change of scene. That could mean knitting on the couch instead of your favorite chair, or it might mean something equally simple, like revisiting your yarn stash. Within that stash lies much opportunity. My stash is like a diary. Every project I look at reminds me of a time and place. Often I remember an old friend, or at least who was around when I started the project.

A few days ago I came across a vest I had started for my Aunt Audrey who passed away several years ago.

The soft green wool, still neatly on the needles, was a yarn and color she'd chosen. She wanted something that buttoned, but fairly simple in design. I'm not sure why I abandoned the project, perhaps her illness progressed and I found it futile. Now, however, I found myself remembering her joy at the prospect of getting a sweater knit for her by me. 5 years ago I wouldn't have been able to do it, but this year I've decided to turn it into a luscious shawl, for me. The best part is it will also contain the sparkle of Aunt Audrey.

A little change goes a long way.

That should be up and running soon.
